CHILDREN'S SPORTS IN SUMMER

TIPS FOR PRACTICING SPORTS SAFELY

1

THE IDEAL TIME

AT THE BEGINNING OR AT THE END OF THE DAY

Completely avoid strenuous physical activity during peak sun hours, specifically between 12:00 and 17:00. The best options are early morning or late afternoon, when ambient and ground temperatures decrease.

2

PROACTIVE HYDRATION

OFFER WATER BEFORE THEY GET THIRSTY

Offer them fresh water every 15 or 20 minutes during play. Water should be your main drink. Avoid sugary sodas or processed juices, as they don't hydrate properly.

3

PROTECTIVE SHIELD AGAINST THE SUN

Use sunscreen with SPF 50+ specifically formulated for children. Apply it 30 minutes before going outside and reapply it every two hours. Opt for lightweight, breathable clothing in light colors. A cap is a must, and sunglasses must be certified.

4

EXERCISE ADAPTED TO YOUR AGE AND PACE

Children under 7: Sport should be purely recreational play (running, jumping, swimming in the pool). The goal is for them to have fun, not to compete. From age 7: They can now undertake more structured training (cycling, tennis, football) or participate in sports camps, always ensuring frequent breaks in the shade.

EXCESSIVE REDNESS OF THE SKIN

Take him to a cool place, offer him water in small sips, and cool his body with damp cloths.
If symptoms persist, seek medical attention at the nearest clinic.

NUTRITION AND SPORT SMALL HABITS THAT MAKE A DIFFERENCE

FERMENTO

A FOOD CUP,
EVERY DETAIL COUNTS

In competitions like the MADCUP, where teams juggle training, travel, and multiple matches in just a few days, nutrition becomes an integral part of the game. It's not just physical exertion and rest that matter: how players eat also impacts their energy, recovery, and performance throughout the tournament.

That's why sports nutritionists emphasize the importance of maintaining balanced habits during competition. It's not about following a strict diet, but about choosing simple, varied foods that provide quality energy.

In this context, the Mediterranean diet remains one of the most highly recommended eating patterns. Fruits, vegetables, olive oil, nuts, legumes, and bread are all part of a diet linked to athletic performance.

FRUITS

VEGETABLES

OLIVE OIL

LEGUMES

PAN

They are all part of a diet linked to athletic performance

Bread, especially when made using long fermentation processes, provides complex carbohydrates, a key source of energy for physical activity. Furthermore, its versatility makes it suitable for various times of the day: breakfasts before competition, recovery meals, or snacks between matches.

This is the case with Fermento, which works with this type of product inspired by baking traditions and a more mindful approach to eating. Because in tournaments like the MADCUP, what happens off the field matters too.
