MUSA

Sport is much more than a competition. Beyond winning or losing, it's an educational tool that transmits essential values for coexistence and personal development. Among these values are effort, discipline, teamwork, humility, and respect; principles that help to create better athletes and better people.

I RESPECT

In any competition, respect must be present in every action: towards teammates, opponents, coaches, spectators, and especially towards the referees. Their work is fundamental to ensuring the proper conduct of the matches and a level playing field for all participants.

MODESTY

Accepting a referee's decision, even when you disagree with it, is part of the learning process. Furthermore, young athletes find in the behavior of players, coaches, and families an example that will shape their understanding of sports in the future.

VALUES

At MUSAI, we believe that true success is not measured solely by results, but also by the values we demonstrate both inside and outside the company.

RESPECT IS ALWAYS A SHARED VICTORY

CHILDREN'S SPORTS IN SUMMER

TIPS FOR PRACTICING SPORTS SAFELY

1

THE IDEAL TIME

AT THE BEGINNING OR AT THE END OF THE DAY

Completely avoid strenuous physical activity during peak sun hours, specifically between 12:00 and 17:00. The best options are early morning or late afternoon, when ambient and ground temperatures decrease.

2

PROACTIVE HYDRATION

OFFER WATER BEFORE THEY GET THIRSTY

Offer them fresh water every 15 or 20 minutes during play. Water should be your main drink. Avoid sugary sodas or processed juices, as they don't hydrate properly.

3

PROTECTIVE SHIELD AGAINST THE SUN

Use sunscreen with SPF 50+ specifically formulated for children. Apply it 30 minutes before going outside and reapply it every two hours. Opt for lightweight, breathable clothing in light colors. A cap is a must, and sunglasses must be certified.

4

EXERCISE ADAPTED TO YOUR AGE AND PACE

Children under 7: Sport should be purely recreational play (running, jumping, swimming in the pool). The goal is for them to have fun, not to compete. From age 7: They can now undertake more structured training (cycling, tennis, football) or participate in sports camps, always ensuring frequent breaks in the shade.
